Attractive, economical, and energy efficient.

Architecturally exposed round and oval spiral duct is commonly used as an integral part of interior design. The reasons are clear: exposed spiral duct looks great, performs efficiently, offers a wide variety of design styles and is economical to install and operate.

Because architecturally exposed duct is visible to the occupants of the building, the quality of the product must be superior to that of concealed duct.

Our 50+ years of manufacturing experience allows us to offer you the highest quality, best looking product on the market today. We'll give you the quality and performance you can rely on to design award winning facilities.

For your next architecturally exposed duct application, remember "We make it easy" at FläktGroup® SEMCO® .
